NUMBED BASS EASILY CAUGHT.

Head, Me., Jan. 18 .- Three to of striped bass, said to be the larges ent of this species ever made, hav been sent to New York and Boston com-mission merchants by men and boys who reaped small fortunes when an old dam on the Kennebunk River broke. Inesti-mable numbers of bass weighing from two to ten pounds imemdiately headed for Parker Head pond, where the water was warmer. When the temperature here dropped below freesing point the fish rose to the surface and were numbed by the ice. They were scooped up in nets, and in this frozen condition were shipped.

two speculators from Bath, Mc, bought the fish on the spot in two-horse sleds at 20 and 22 cents a pound, despite the fact that the supply apparently was inexhaustible. When the temperature started to rise the schools disappeared as quickly as they came.

Garrison Denies Department Has Committed Itself on Proposal.

ONLY UNDER ADVISEMENT

Secretary of War Issues Stat Remove Danger of Wrong Public Impression.

Fearing that the public might get the impression regarding the attitu tia, Secretary of War Garrison last militia, Secretary of War Garrison last night issued a statement setting forth in unmistakable terms the position of the gevernment. He explained that while a bill has been drafted and has been carefully studied by himself and all interested elements in the situation, the administration has not yet committed itself for or against the principle of Federal pay for the militia. His statement is as follows:

Wants Public Informed.

'I have observed in all the statements with respect to the proposed militia pay bill, which I have seen, an implication which is unwarranted by the facts. I would like the exact situation to be known so that those who discuss it may do so advisedly.

'The implication or statement that I refer to is that the War Department has already committed itself to the principle of paying the militia. The fact is that I have made it perfectly clear to every one concerned that the administration is not committed to the principle of such pay.

not committed to the principle of such pay.

"Very early in my administration of the department this matter was brought to m; attention. I learned there was wide-spread interest in the subject, and that it was very difficult to pass properly upon the principle involved because of disagreement as to details. Some wanted the Federal pay without much regard, if any, to what advantages the Federal government would result therefor; others favored pay provided advantages not otherwise obtainable by the Federal government would result therefrom. The whole subject was confused and impossible of treatment until crystalized. I stated clearly when the subject was first brought to me that I had formed no conclusion with respect to the advisability of the Federal government providing pay for members of the militia guard. I suggested the desirability, I might even say the necessity, of having a concrete proposition to pass upon, a bill which would clearly set forth what the cost would be and just what would be secured by the payment thereof.

and advisibility of adopting the principle of militia pay, I would then take the matter up with the President and announce a conclusion thereon. There is and can be no misunderstanding of my position by any of those who participated in the consideration of the matter; and and the Pharisses, and both lived in ages of extreme corruption." declared 'Dr. Huddle. "Both had wenderful shiftly in controversy, the weapon of Socrates being the question, that of Jesus the parable, and with these they worsted the brightest and meanest minds of their day. "Being each of a sociable temperament, they mingled freely with the crowds and by the magnetism of their personality drew all classes to them. They both were destitute of worldly ambition and desire for wealth, and consequently gave themselves to the service of others, the one elevating men by dispelling ignorance and the other saving them by the 'expulsive power of a new affection.' They both laid down basic principles, Socrates arriving at truth by diligent search and Jesus communicating it out of the fullness of his divine knowledge. Socrates argued, Jesus revealed!"

REVOLVER DUEL FOUGHT IN HOTEL'S DINING-ROOM

Supper Parties in Boston Hostelry Thrown Into Confusion by Midnight Shooting.

Midnight Shooting.

Boston, Jan. 18.—A revolver duel in the main dining-room of the Hotel Langham at midnight ended in a running street fight, in which several shots were fired at Patrolman J. A. Sullivan before he succeeded in placing under arrest John Warren, of No. 10 Chester street, Roxbury, said to have come here from New York, following the crusade there. Warren entered the Langham shortly after 11 o'clock, apparently looking for some one, and at midnight suddenly whipped out a revolver and blazed away at a well-dressed man sitting at a table about twenty feet away, with a woman.

The unknown man quickly overturned the table, sheltering the woman, who took the affair coolly, and then returned two shots from an automatic revolver, escaping in the excitement that followed, a trail of blood indicating that he had been struck.

The police traced him to the Rack Ray a trail of blood indicating that he had been struck.

The police traced him to the Back Bay district in a taxicab, but could not locate him. Warren then fled through the front door, passing Patrolman Sullivan, who had heard the shots and who gave chase. A third degree was administered to Warren this morning in the hope that a motive for the shooting could be obtained, but he refused to talk.
